TO MS. Fawcett:

This quarter was very interesting. When we approached Macbeth, I was dreading it. I hate Shakespeare. But as we moved through it, I found that I was able to decode the language a lot better than before. It was very, very boring sometimes, but when you stopped to explain what was going on, it was very helpful. One thing I liked about this quarter was the journal entries. I love being able to bring my real life stories & thoughts into my work and into the play. It makes things a lot easier to study and remember. Plus it's literally like you're writing in a journal! One thing I didn't like was sitting through so much Macbeth at one time. Macbeth was rough, but it was a good experience. I feel accomplished to have finished it as easily as I did! Ms. Fawcett, you did a good job. I'm glad we could be your first class to teach. Thank you for being thorough and very enthusiastic. Good luck! I hope all the best for you!

From, Pauline Aszmann.
